

David D'Angelo

Biography

David D'Angelo was born in Miami, FL to an American mother and Peruvian father. From an early age he became immersed in music, which was brought to him in the forms of classical from his mother and traditional Peruvian stylings from his father. His first love is piano, however, it wasn't long before he picked up guitar and bass. His knack for composing and improvising took him into the world of music production in his teen years. The biggest influences on his production style are Flying Lotus, 9th Wonder, J Dilla, The Neptunes, Kanye West, Iman Omari, Dam Funk, Sounwave, and 40. He is also heavily influenced by such vocalists and instrumentalists as Kendrick Lamar, Erykah Badu, D'Angelo, Ahmad Jamal, and Robert Glasper.

Performance Experience

David has been based in New Orleans, LA for the past three years. There he has gained recognition having opened for well respected artists such as Christian Scott (grammy nominated trumpeter, composer, and producer), Iman Omari (Production credits on Kendrick Lamar's Section 80), and Brooklyn based rapper Cavalier (frequent collaborator with Iman Omari and the singer Anna Wise, who was featured on Kendrick Lamar's last two studio albums.) ## Musical Releases

David has already released multiple singles, as well as his debut EP Born in Paradise in Fall 2016. Here are some examples of his single artwork.

His EP Born in Paradise was created to bring awareness to environmental issues and climate change. To be born in paradise is to believe that you were born in paradise; paradise is a mindset. Born in Paradise is a way of remembering all the beauty and goodness that this world has to offer.

Sonically, Born in Paradise is a melting pot of G-funk inspired Hip-Hop production, compositional elements of R&B and Smooth Jazz, as well as Electronic synth layering/texturing. The first single off of his EP, "Moon Influences Man," was released in January of this year. It features a Jazz saxophonist telling his story over soulful Hip-Hop production and culminates in a futuristic duet between melancholic piano and a watery synthesizer. His latest single, "Jade," blends heavy bass, oriental chimes, trippy synths, rhythmic guitar licks, and pristine piano to build a unique instrumental bed of sound. It also features a simple yet catchy hook sang by a Nigerian R&B vocalist named Ayotemi.
